CASWELL AND CLARKE RECOGNIZED AS ANGELS AMONG US

Watchung Hills Regional High School student seniors Leanna Caswell and Laura Clarke, both of Green Brook Township, received recognition at the 42nd ARC Angel Gala "Celebrating Volunteerism" on Friday, Nov. 14, at Fiddler's Elbow Country Club, Bedminster Township.

Caswell received an "Angels Among Us" award for her active role in the school's Peer Outreach elective course. Through this course, mainstream students work collectively with their special needs peers on a daily basis. She also works as a special needs swim instructor.

Clarke was honored with an Angels Among Us award for having given 250 volunteer hours at a preschool and as a therapeutic equine instructor for students with special needs.

Also receiving an Angels Among Us award was Laura Cavanaugh, a student at Immaculata High School, Somerville. She gave more than 1,000 hours of volunteer service working with HAPHA (Higher Achievement Programs for Handicapped Adults) and a number of other smaller groups that serve the special needs community.

Presenting the awards was Assemblyman Jack Cittarelli, R-Somerset, and Lauren Panarella, executive director of The Arc of Somerset County.

Caswell, who is a member of the Watchung Hills Swim Team and is involved in the Care Club, also is a swim teacher after school and sometimes teaches children with disabilities, such as Autism and Cerebral Palsy, how to swim.

Clarke said she started volunteering at her local horse riding barn in 2012, and became a summer camp counselor that first summer. For the summer camp, she taught children how to ride as well as the basic care, such as feeding and grooming.

She is involved with the preschool program at Watchung Hills, something she has been doing for the last three years. Clarke said she plans to major in animal science and zoology when she goes to college next year.

Three prominent corporate supporters of The Arc of Somerset County were honored for "The Arc Angel Award." L'Oreal, Henkel and Janssen have collectively played a vital role in the success of The Arc and have positively impacted the children, adolescents and adults who participate in The Arc's various programs, Panarella said. All three companies have dedicated hundreds of hours over the course of the past

106 STUDENTS INDUCTED INTO NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Some 106 seniors at Watchung Hills Regional High School were inducted into the National Honor Society at a ceremony attended by the students and their families on Thursday, Dec. 4, in the school's Performing Arts Center. Students received the congratulations of administration and faculty members, and were each called on stage and presented with the National Honor Society Gold Honor Cord, which they will wear next in June on graduation day.

The National Honor Society was founded in 1921 and is designed "to recognize academic achievement while developing other characteristics essential to citizens in a democracy," according to the program distributed to everyone who attended the ceremony. The Watchung Hills chapter is one of 13,500 chapters in the United States.

Every year, students are asked to select a teacher they have had at Watchung Hills who should be named honorary member of their National Honor Society chapter. Social Studies teacher Ken Karnas was selected by the students to be so honored, and new student member Charlotte Kwon made the presentation. Kwon said that Karnas teaches with an enthusiasm that is contagious, and that he makes learning fun. He also goes beyond merely teaching the subject matter.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS ATTEND LARGEST POETRY FESTIVAL IN NORTH AMERICA

Submitted by Denis J. Kelly

Thirty creative writing enthusiasts from Watchung Hills Regional High School traveled to the New Jersey Performing Arts Center (NJPAC) in Newark on Friday, Oct. 24, to attend the 15th Biennial Dodge Poetry Festival, the largest poetry festival in North America.

“It was a life-changing event,” agreed students Bim Semmling of Green Brook Township, Jodi Todtenkopf of Warren Township, and Dan Connolly of Watchung, who were among the Watchung Hills students attending the festival. They said they had learned so much from meeting professional poets, hearing first hand from them some ideas about how to sharpen their own writing craft, and even taking photos with the poets who were more than willing to talk to the students about writing.

The invited speakers at the festival who gave readings, held small group discussions, and mingled with the students is a veritable who’s who of contemporary poets. Joining the students from Watchung Hills at the festival were students from 14 states. It was held for four days, from Thursday, Oct. 23, to Sunday, Oct. 26. The Watchung Hills students attended on the festival’s day set aside especially for students. Accompanying students were several Watchung Hills English teachers: Katy Engelmeyer, Laura Goodson, Heather Farrington, Caren Abschutz, and English Supervisor Marlene Stoto.

Goodson added that one of her favorite parts of the festival was the contributions of several physically-challenged poets, two who were sight-impaired and two who had Cerebral Palsy. They shared how liberating it is to write poetry, a medium in which they are by no means physically-challenged.
